

- 2) Look to see if the evidence relates to the topic of the paragraph.
- 3) Explain how and why the quotation or information/evidence is important.
- 4) Do not assume that your paraphrase of a quote automatically proves your point. Make the effort to clarify the significance of your quote to the thesis/topic of the paragraph.
- 5) Connect the quote to the Topic (topic sentence) of the paragraph and the Thesis. (ask yourself- Why is this quote or information relevant enough for me to use here?)
- 6) The final sentence of the paragraph summarizes what we have learned relevant to the thesis and pushes us forward to the next paragraph.

Note: In utilizing quotes to prove a point in your essay, you do not have to use the entire quote, as it may not all be relevant to your topic or thesis. You can just use the relevant portion or phrase.

Guide to Analyzing Quotes for Document Based Essays and Research Papers.

- 1) Read through the document, quote or material provided.
- 2) Look to see if the evidence relates to the topic of the paragraph.
- 3) Explain how and why the quotation or information/evidence is important.
- 4) Do not assume that your paraphrase of a quote automatically proves your point. Make the effort to clarify the significance of your quote to the thesis/topic of the paragraph.
- 5) Connect the quote to the Topic (topic sentence) of the paragraph and the Thesis. (ask yourself- Why is this quote or information relevant enough for me to use here?)
- 6) The final sentence of the paragraph summarizes what we have learned relevant to the thesis and pushes us forward to the next paragraph.

Note: In utilizing quotes to prove a point in your essay, you do not have to use the entire quote, as it may not all be relevant to your topic or thesis. You can just use the relevant portion or phrase.

Guide to Analyzing Quotes for Document Based Essays and Research Papers.

- 1) Read through the document, quote or material provided.
- 2) Look to see if the evidence relates to the topic of the paragraph.
- 3) Explain how and why the quotation or information/evidence is important.
- 4) Do not assume that your paraphrase of a quote automatically proves your point. Make the effort to clarify the significance of your quote to the thesis/topic of the paragraph.
- 5) Connect the quote to the Topic (topic sentence) of the paragraph and the Thesis. (ask yourself- Why is this quote or information relevant enough for me to use here?)
- 6) The final sentence of the paragraph summarizes what we have learned relevant to the thesis and pushes us forward to the next paragraph.

Note: In utilizing quotes to prove a point in your essay, you do not have to use the entire quote, as it may not all be relevant to your topic or thesis. You can just use the relevant portion or phrase.

- 2) Look to see if the evidence relates to the topic of the paragraph.
- 3) Explain how and why the quotation or information/evidence is important.
- 4) Do not assume that your paraphrase of a quote automatically proves your point. Make the effort to clarify the significance of your quote to the thesis/topic of the paragraph.
- 5) Connect the quote to the Topic (topic sentence) of the paragraph and the Thesis. (ask yourself- Why is this quote or information relevant enough for me to use here?)
- 6) The final sentence of the paragraph summarizes what we have learned relevant to the thesis and pushes us forward to the next paragraph.

Note: In utilizing quotes to prove a point in your essay, you do not have to use the entire quote, as it may not all be relevant to your topic or thesis. You can just use the relevant portion or phrase.

Guide to Analyzing Quotes for Document Based Essays and Research Papers.

- 1) Read through the document, quote or material provided.
- 2) Look to see if the evidence relates to the topic of the paragraph.
- 3) Explain how and why the quotation or information/evidence is important.
- 4) Do not assume that your paraphrase of a quote automatically proves your point. Make the effort to clarify the significance of your quote to the thesis/topic of the paragraph.
- 5) Connect the quote to the Topic (topic sentence) of the paragraph and the Thesis. (ask yourself- Why is this quote or information relevant enough for me to use here?)
- 6) The final sentence of the paragraph summarizes what we have learned relevant to the thesis and pushes us forward to the next paragraph.

Note: In utilizing quotes to prove a point in your essay, you do not have to use the entire quote, as it may not all be relevant to your topic or thesis. You can just use the relevant portion or phrase.

Guide to Analyzing Quotes for Document Based Essays and Research Papers.

- 1) Read through the document, quote or material provided.
- 2) Look to see if the evidence relates to the topic of the paragraph.
- 3) Explain how and why the quotation or information/evidence is important.
- 4) Do not assume that your paraphrase of a quote automatically proves your point. Make the effort to clarify the significance of your quote to the thesis/topic of the paragraph.
- 5) Connect the quote to the Topic (topic sentence) of the paragraph and the Thesis. (ask yourself- Why is this quote or information relevant enough for me to use here?)
- 6) The final sentence of the paragraph summarizes what we have learned relevant to the thesis and pushes us forward to the next paragraph.

Note: In utilizing quotes to prove a point in your essay, you do not have to use the entire quote, as it may not all be relevant to your topic or thesis. You can just use the relevant portion or phrase.

Signal Phrases- to be used in a thesis statement or when introducing a document.

reveals, highlights, illuminates, illustrates, acknowledges, adds, admits, agrees, argues, believes, claims, compares, confirms, contends, emphasizes, comments, exposes, illustrates, grants, insists, observes, reasons, refutes, rejects, reports, responds, suggests, thinks, writes, endorses, declares, denies, disputes, enlightens, conveys, explains

Use a signal phrase from the list above, to edit one statement from the sample DBQ paragraphs.

